

ABSTRACT

A foldable box assembly configured to carry a product or products, the box having an integrated handle configured to connect to the bottom of the foldable box assembly and extend through the top of the assembled box. Additionally, the foldable box assembly may comprise product openings in the top of the box assembly allowing objects carried in the foldable box assembly to protrude from the top of the assembled box when the top is closed to provide additional security for the objects.